

It was already 17:30 when we finished our tour through the place of ice sculptures. What we saw was amazing. We went back by bus to the city center. The bus we took was full up of people. It was no fun to travel by bus. There were so many people in the bus that you can't fall. I thought it's OK for a short distance. But the trip was longer as we thought because there was a lot of traffic and it still didn't stop to snow. Some friendly worker who do the ice sculptures helped us to get to the city center. When we arrived there we went straight to the next MC **** to have our dinner. On the way we discovered another park of ice sculptures. We decided to go there after our dinner and a stopp at the ice bar. After our dinner at MC **** we went to the ice bar which was next to it. It was great in there even the music. Nearly everything was made of of ice (bar, tabel, bench) We had there a drink of wodka (30 RMB each). But that have been normal glasses. The ash tray was made of ice.

picture 1: Anna and me in the "Ice Bar" (Harbin)

We went on with our trip to the park of ice sculptures. It was there great to. In the summer it must be an adventure park. So they had some attractions made of ice. We wanted to slight a very long slight. But to get there you had to go there over saveral things. First you went up the ice stairs and then it go a very short slight down. I didn't sit down a came down while I was standig. It was great fun. Anna wanted to make a picture of me down there. Afterwards I decided to climb up. And then it happened. I slipped and my eye brow hit a ice block. Damm that hurts! It was no good idea to go up there again! After I touched it I had blood in my hand. Anna looked at it and said that it is not very big. We decided not to slight and went straight to the first help office. There they gave my something (Pflaster) for my eye brow. And the fun could continue. We found a even better slight. If I could give this slight a name, I would call it „The Ice Hole“. It was great to use it because you don't know if you get the small hole or not.

picture 2: The Ice Hole!